Q. Should I report students identified in the past as at risk for suicide?

A. No. Report going forward.

Q. Should a school counselor, social worker, or psychologist report if a student is identified at risk for suicide but is not referred for services?

A. Yes, report a student identified at risk even if they are not referred for further services. Here are some examples of this situation (all are options on the Referral Reporting form):

- A student may be identified at risk for suicide but not be referred because they are already receiving services.
- A student may be identified at risk for suicide but not referred because, after talking with the student the counselor determines the student is not at risk.

Q. What if I refer a student for mental health services but don't know if they received those services?

A. On either of the Follow-up Reporting forms, you will have the option to answer "Don't know" and give a reason why you don't know if the student received mental health services, such as:

- Parent permission for tracking required but not granted.
- Parent or youth could not be contacted.

Q. Will a counselor or school be identified in any of the reports or GIS maps?

A. No. Data will be aggregated in reports. Mapping will be done by county or multi-county area. A student, counselor, school, or school district will not be identified.
